Special Committee Asks
Italy To Withdraw
50,000 Troops

(By Associated Press) The nation of Europe, bound by a neutrality accord unique in world history, ordered that the long-sought non-intervention pact to prevent any possible spread of the Spanish civil war go into effect at midnight tonight.

While the naval and land staffs stood ready to clamp down on the supply of volunteers and munitions to Spain at the stroke of 12, the nations themselves turned to new measures to remove any last danger to Europe by withdrawing all volunteers now fighting in the peninsula.

Italian Troops Problem
A special sub-committee, similar to that which thrashed out the details of the control plan, took under consideration the British sponsored scheme and sought a solution to which the members said was its biggest problem, persuading Italy to withdraw the 50,000 Italian volunteers reported fighting in Spain.

Some 60 warships of Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy were under orders to take over supervision of the entire coast line of Spain while a small army of land observers were in place to patrol the French and Portuguese frontiers.

On the northern battlefield in Spain, insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco warned Basque defenders of Bilbao that 500 artillery pieces were lined up to shell Spanish government lines.

Renewal of the insurgent drive on the Basque capital was imminent. Bilbao's residents counted 10 dead and 15 injured from an insurgent aerial bombardment Sunday.

Government Opens Offensive
Government troops pushed a vigorous offensive in the Teruel sector, 72 miles northwest of Valencia and 150 miles east of Madrid, seeking to cut off Franco's deepest thrust into government territory.

In the rich mining region of Cordoba province, south of the capital, attacks and counter-attacks followed in rapid succession as insurgent forces desperately tried to drive back government troops from mountain positions they had seized.

Madrid suffered another severe shelling Sunday that killed several persons and wounded more than a score.

Ruling On Marion
Pensions Is Upheld

MARION, April 19.—A second court ruling upheld today the action of city council here in abolishing the Marion police pension system. Common Pleas Judge Hector S. Young ruled in favor of the city in a suit by James W. Thompson, former police chief, to test the legality of the council's action.

A similar ruling was made this month in a fireman's pension suit. State and national associations of firemen and policemen have said the cases would be appealed to the U. S. Supreme Court if necessary.

Hey, You Mibs Sharks, Unpack Your Best
Shooters, Knuckle Down For Big Tourney
Swell Medals for School Champs, Vacation for District Winner

Hey, you kids! Get out your best shooters and knuckle down. The Salem News today announces plans for its first marble tournament for Salem youngsters 14 years of age and under. It's open to girls as well as boys, so if there are any of you young ladies with exceptional talent at mibs, count yourself in for some keen competition mighty soon.

With the cooperation of J. M. (Joe) Kelley, manager of the Memorial building and city recreation director, The News will sponsor elimination tournaments in Salem grade and Junior High schools within the next month.

E. S. Kerr, superintendent of public schools, and Rev. Fr. Maurice J. Casey, head of St. Paul's parish, have given their approval to the tournament.

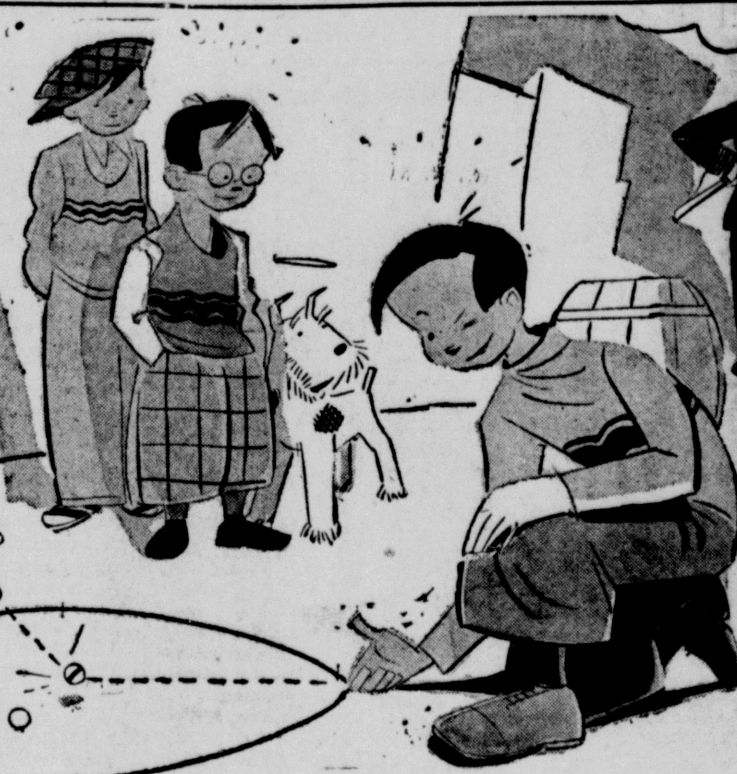

District Meet in Canton
Winners of the various school tournaments, seven in all, will meet in the final, sometime next month to determine the city champion, who will go to Canton to compete in the district tourney.

The winner of the Canton district tournament and the runner-up will be taken to Wildwood, N. J., for competition in the national event with boys from more than 100 cities in the United States. All expenses of the trip will be paid by the sponsors.

There is absolutely no cost to entering The News tournament. Any boy or girl who is not 15 years of age before July 1 is eligible to compete for the city championship and the right to play in the district event. The Salem tourney is one of several conducted in the Canton district. Others are held at Alliance, Massillon, Sebring and several small towns in Stark county. Present plans call for the district tourney to be held in Canton June 5 or June 12.

The News tournament will include St. Paul's, McKinley, Reilly, Fourth Street, Columbia, Prospect and Junior High schools. School champions will be awarded special medals on which appear the picture of two boys shooting marbles, the date and the words, "National Marble Tournament." The city champion will be presented a gold medal, similarly inscribed.

Preliminary Steps
In determining a school champion the first step will be the conducting of elimination tournaments in the various school rooms. Winners of the room championships will then play in the school finals to determine the school champion. The round-robin style of play, in which each player gets a chance to meet every other player, will be used in school finals.

Principals and teachers in the seven schools will be supplied with copies of tournament rules to be distributed among the students.

Dates for the various room and school tournaments are being set now and when completed they will be announced in The News and in the schools. The city finals will probably be held the latter part of May. Referees for the tournaments will be appointed by Kelley and will be well-informed on national rules.

In the event that you are not familiar with marble tournament play, here is a brief sketch of the rules and regulations which can be used while you are practicing for The News tournament.

"Ringer" Is the Name
Ringer is the name of the game played in all national marble tournaments. It is played in a ring 10 feet in diameter with 13 marbles arranged in the center in a cross. No less than two and no more than six can play in one game. The object, as most everyone knows, is to shoot the marbles out of the ring with the player knocking the most mibs from the circles becoming the winner. On all shots, a player must knuckle down so that at least one knuckle is in contact with the ground when the shot is made.

A player continues to shoot as long as he knocks marbles out of the ring, providing his shooter remains in the ring. When a player's shooter goes out of the ring, whether or not he has scored on the shot, he shall cease to shoot but will be credited with the marbles he has knocked from the circle. If a player misses a shot and his marble remains in the ring, he must remove it before the next player shoots.

When a marble comes to rest on the ring line, it shall be counted out of the ring. However, if the edge of the marble is merely on the line and its center is inside the ring, it shall be considered in the ring. If a shooter slips from a player's hand and does not travel more than 10 inches and the player calls "slips," the referee may order "no play" and give the player another shot. All shots must be made from the ring line.

Lisbon Session

LISBON, April 19.—The court of appeals opened its deliberations this morning in court room No. 2, starting its review of nine cases appealed from common pleas court. The docket is one of the shortest on record for Columbiana county but includes one case of county-wide interest. This concerns the action brought by Lloyd C. Kirk to unseat County Engineer Robert Wheatley on the grounds that Wheatley was not a licensed engineer at the time he was elected to office. The election was sustained by Common Pleas Judge W. P. Lones and carried to the higher court on appeal.

Other cases are as follows: R. W. Armstrong vs. J. C. Kelley et al.; Kim Crawford vs. John M. Kerr, et al.; Edward E. Zuch et al. vs. John M. Kerr et al.; H. C. Hoffman, administrator of Frank Goff's estate vs. Charles Otto, et al.; Benjamin C. Johnson vs. K. L. Coburn; A. Dean Lavelle vs. Vernon Walters; Idella A. Marks vs. John J. Marks; R. L. Smith d.b.a. Grading Project Planned by County.

LISBON, April 19.—Grading and resurfacing operations on three miles of dirt road extending from Calcutta to the Pennsylvania state line have been started by the county engineering department.

The gasoline propelled shovel recently purchased by the county commissioners is being used on the improvement. Following completion of work on this road the shovel will be used in grading operations on Depot road, extending from Salem to Guilford.

The cost of the Calcutta road repair has been estimated at $20,000, providing for widening as well as grading and resurfacing.

Government to Demand the Death of Federal Agent

TOPEKA, Kas., April 19.—The government made ready today to charge two New York gunmen with murder—and demand the death penalty—while the father of a young federal agent who was cut down by bullets in the postoffice here Friday prepared to return his son's body to their Arizona home.

United States District Attorney S. S. Alexander planned to issue warrants charging Alfred Power and Robert Suhay, accused of an $18,000 Katonah, N. Y., bank robbery, with the murder of Winifred W. Baker, 27, Federal Bureau of Investigation agent, shot in the back as he participated in an attempt by G-men to arrest the two men when they called for mail at the postoffice.

Alexander said he would ask the death penalty for the accused men. They are held for safekeeping in the strongly fortified Jackson county jail in Kansas City, Mo.

H. H. Baker, Yuma, an Arizona state senator and father of the slain agent, said he will take his son's body home for funeral services and burial. Baker died in a hospital here near midnight Saturday.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said in Washington that Power and Suhay had admitted the Topeka shooting. Hoover said his information was that Baker had surprised Power at a postoffice window and that Suhay had fired upon the agent from a "lookout" position he had taken up some distance back of his partner.

Baker was the tenth federal agent killed in the line of duty since 1925.

LISBON, April 19.—It happened on a wedding party, but it wouldn't be considered good advice to newlyweds.

COST REDUCTION

Believes State's Budget Should Be Pared As Much As Possible

Swinging along with the so-called conservative group of the Ohio senate, Senator R. John Taylor of Salem declared today that he favors cutting the biennial appropriation bill currently being discussed by the senate finance committee.

The bill, which will be hashed over by the committee this week, asks for $89,098,708 for the operation of the state government during the next two years, but does not set aside any funds for poor relief.

Taylor, a member of the finance committee of which Senator Emerson Campbell of St. Clairsville is chairman, believes that the appropriation can be sliced to the actual expenditures for the last biennium and include the estimated $7,000,000 necessary for relief purposes.

Taylor's views, would be slightly higher than that of the last biennium, which was approximately $82,000,000.

"Challenge Is Before Us", Commerce Secretary Tells
Annual Meeting of Associated Press

(By Associated Press) NEW YORK, April 19.—The nation's two outstanding needs, Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper said today, are to awaken people further to their responsibility for law and order and to halt the deterioration of home life and the common virtues inherent therein.

"The challenge is upon us as a people," he told the annual meeting of the Association Press, "to realize that laws cannot be wisely constructed nor effectively enforced without the assistance, understanding, sympathy and cooperation of the people."

"It is therefore of prime importance that the people should be aroused, through thoroughly informed leadership, to study the theory and practice of this government and their responsibilities thereunder."

On the second point he said, "census statistics disclose that those of our people who are best situated to typify character, integrity and intelligence are not on the increase. Those who have con-

TOLEDO, April 19.—Theodore De Witt, director of the hotel, chain bearing his name, estimated today damage of between $30,000 and $40,000 was caused last night by a blaze in the 10-story, 400-room Secor hotel.

Two men, one a fireman, were injured and two firemen were overcome by smoke as approximately 90 guests fled down fire escapes and through smoke-filled corridors.

N. B. Arnold, Cleveland salesman, was given hospital treatment for lacerations received when he shattered a glass door to reach a ninth floor fire escape.

Fire Chief Fred T. Schlorf said the blaze originated in a ninth floor room to which Gerald Myers, hotel engineer, was summoned by a complaint that the lights were out. Myers said the room was enveloped in flames when he arrived.

Firemen wearing gas masks carried Miss Irene Franks, 25-year-old waitress, from tenth floor employees' quarters.

Water towers were used to combat the fire.

Writings, Photos On Nature
Subjects Make Up
Five Volumes

Henry W. Weisgerber, chief of the blue print department of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., and former Salem resident, has just been honored by the Youngstown public library, which has placed in its reference library five volumes of his writings, with photographs, on nature subjects, covering a period of 25 years.

These volumes are in loose leaf scrap-book form and are arranged as follows:

Two volumes are made up of press clippings, of which there are a thousand or more, from The Salem News and Youngstown papers which appeared regularly under the caption "A Country Diary." These are mostly short and pithy comments on his observations of the habits of birds, the nature of certain plants and flowers, weather conditions, their causes and effects, etc.

The second of these two volumes contains, in addition to the "Country Diary" articles, a number of photographs of plant life, flowers, mushrooms, birds' nests and several of spiders' webs all of unusual interest.

A third volume is devoted largely to his rambles through Mill Creek park, Youngstown, where he hunted with camera and field glasses.

A fourth volume is made up of his earliest contributions to the public press, dating back as far as 1902, the greater part of which appeared in The Salem News and dealt almost entirely with bird life.

The final volume is a miscellaneous collection of articles on topics of the day, many of them appearing under the heading, "Way-side Observations."

"Hank" as he was familiarly known here, will be remembered by many Salemites as a bird lover, naturalist and writer. He was employed in the blue print department of the Buckeye Engine Co., for several years before going to Youngstown. He provided The News with reports on weather conditions as well as contributing his "diary" and other articles.

Mr. and Mrs. Weisgerber now reside at 645 Cohasset drive, Youngstown.

CUT PROTESTED
BY GOVERNORS

Only Two Believe States
Should Assume Relief
Burden

(By Associated Press) CHICAGO, April 19.—In advance of President Roosevelt's expected relief message to congress this week, state governors presented an almost solid front today against reduction of the federal program—if it meant placing a greater burden on the states.

Their views, obtained by the Associated Press in a national survey, showed sentiment strongly favoring continuation of the Works Progress Administration, the Civilian Conservation Corps and other federal employment agencies on the present $2,000,000,000 a year scale.

Two Dissent
Only two governors—one a Democrat and the other a Republican—declared the time had come for the states to lift the relief load from the government's shoulders. Several contended there should be a loosening, rather than a tightening, of Washington purse strings.

The President's tentative budget estimates in January listed $1,500,000,000 as the contemplated federal relief outlay for the fiscal year to begin July 1, a 25 per cent cut. Since then utterances of Mr. Roosevelt and his aides have placed even stronger emphasis on retrenchment.

Gov. Elmer A. Benson of Minnesota epitomized the majority opinion of the governors when he said: "I don't see how we could possibly take over any more of the load. If we are forced to do it, it may mean bankruptcy for the state."

Democratic Governor Richard C. McMullen of Delaware and Gov. George D. Aiken of Vermont, a Republican, were the only flat dissenters.

Thinks States Should Act

"It is time for this state and all states to assume the whole burden and take immediate steps to see that the people become independent of relief," said Gov. McMullen.

Gov. Aiken remarked: "Vermont would like to see a reduction in federal expenditures and will bear her portion of any increased relief burden in the same proportion as other states."

Lewis Unions

(By Associated Press) Threats of new walkouts from General Motors plants drew the attention of automobile manufacturers and employees today.

Leaders of the Automobile Workers' union were reported considering a sympathy walkout in the United States after Premier Mitchell Hepburn failed for the second time to negotiate settlement of the G. M. strike at Oshawa, Ontario, where 3,700 workers are idle. Agents of the John L. Lewis Committee for Industrial Organization were barred from the conferences.

Charge Agreements Broken
Union officials charged that General Motors had broken two agreements in failing to settle the Oshawa strike.

Hepburn said he had been told C. I. O. organizers were to bring on strikes in two Canadian mining areas.

The premier warned that any further "invasion" by the Lewis organization would bring "more drastic combative action than had been initiated to date."

A showdown on the expulsion of the Lewis "rebel" union was expected today at a meeting of the American Federation of Labor executive council in Washington.

Although the purpose of the conference was to discuss a general membership campaign, it was expected that the council would fix a time and place for a

A PLACE TO BEGIN

A national labor policy is not going to materialize suddenly out of thin air, no matter how loud may become the demand for such an impossible act of magic.

Ultimately, a labor policy will grow—detail by detail, principle by principle, under patient cultivation. That is, it will grow if given a chance.

The importance of the new labor movement is its nature as a test of the country's ability to keep its head. The United States is working out a problem affecting the destiny of free government.

Failure would mean chaos and an attempt to restore order under the repressive guidance of dictatorial power. Success would—success will—mean triumph of intelligence over the puzzles of economic organization.

That is why there is a sharp demand for wider and deeper responsibility on the part of the leaders of new and revitalized unions. In their hands have been placed great powers of good and evil.

It is imperative that the leaders be responsible, not to the state, but to their own followers, with the state acting as policeman. Labor can be trusted to fulfill its destiny as long as its power is not misdirected or abused.

There is another kind of responsibility. Organized labor must have leaders who will be responsible to it, but it must be, in turn, responsible to its leaders. That is the price of organization.

These two requirements complement each other. Either one without the other is, obviously, meaningless. Leadership cannot be responsible, unless followers are responsible. Followers can do nothing without good leaders.

When these two facts are faced honestly and handled realistically, the labor policy which some Americans long for, as a means of reducing their complaints to small, manageable problems, will emerge without much trouble. If results are visible plainly, within a quarter of a century, historians will be able to say that evolution of an American labor policy proceeded rapidly in the first two thirds of the 20th century.

ARM TWISTING

Oppressed German Jews may wish sometimes for fewer sympathetic friends abroad, particularly ones who insist on advertising their feelings.

It works like this: A few days ago Germany put a ban on Jewish political meetings and sports events. The propaganda ministry cheerfully explained this was done because Mayor LaGuardia of New York City and various newspapers, particularly American ones, had been popping off too much about German Jew-baiting.

In effect, this meant that the Nazis intended to twist the arm of the helpless Jewish minority in Germany a little harder to show indignant foreigners that they were only making matters worse by criticizing. Arm twisting is kind of a Nazi specialty, in more ways than one.

When things like this happen, it's tempting to read between the lines of all news from Germany more closely than ever in an attempt to discover that it can't go on forever—an interpretation which foreigners have been placing on the Nazi puzzle for the last four years, but so far without apparent justification.

HOW ELSE?

Next Thursday, there will be a nationwide student strike against war. It will be a stirring demonstration.

Here and there, fights will break out. The strikers will be called pacifists and reviled by some of the tougher-minded youths on the various campuses.

Chiefly, it will be an occasion for students to break the monotony of going to classes. Everybody will have fun, including, of course, the orators, who will have the most fun of all.

It seems silly when you think of it—or, if not silly, then at least futile. But the significant thing about war and the present state of the world with relation to war is that almost everything being attempted seems a little futile, the talk about disarmament when all nations are arming, the proposals for neutrality when nobody feels neutral and the hope and propaganda for peace when so many persons who hate war are convinced in their own minds that at least one more great conflict is inevitable.

THE STARS SAY:

If This Is our Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are in line for promotion, success in employment and in important business projects, as well as for tokens and benefices of very influential personages. But at the same time, rash, tempestuous, impulsive, quarrelsome and reckless behavior must be restrained lest they jeopardize excellent prospects for profit and pleasure.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, April 19—Diary: Up and a new serving maid named Gabrielle from Provence who blushes prettily. And a letter from the Appleton-Century folk suggesting a book on small town memories, which I wish I had the energy and time to do. So came Dex Fellows of the circus, a rare Roman.

Verne Porter popped in and I brewed him a tea from sassafras Lottie West sent from Missouri and we played the old card game, pitch. Then off to Mrs. William Brown Meloney's reception for my favorite mystery writer, E. Phillips Oppenheim, and then to see Thyra Semter Winslow at the St. Moritz.

To dinner at the Mascotte and talked to Bill Farnsworth and the actor Bill Halligan, who has grown so gray and handsome in eight years I did not recognize him sover. Then walking over to Park Avenue to sit with Keats and Florence Speed, about the nicest couple I ever came to know. To bed early.

The barny Mills Hotels are the only inns left with window lobby sitters. Designed for men in low purse, their clientele is largely composed of tight-lipped, grim men also in low spirits. Those who have so often snatched at success and missed but carry on. They are marked by their silence as they look out upon the sidewalk throng. And like most men who despair, seldom remove their hats.

Many years ago as a more active reporter, I spent a night in an upstairs lodging house on the Bowery in quest of one of those "submerged tenth" features. The place was called "The Little Belmont" and the night clerk, tottering, kindly and deaf, seemed surprised when I asked if I might have a light after 10 p. m. "Nobody reads in bed here," he said. I did not expect to sleep but to read and listen. The rooms were mere stalls with paper-thin, head-high partitions. Strangely, there was no fitful tossing. Rather the terrific buzz of sound snoring. All were routed at 6 a. m. for the day sleepers, and all looked heavily lidded from deep slumber. No insomnia here. Just utter fatigue.

Men with ideas: I know an up-and-coming radio executive who dresses each morning to the record of Victor Herbert's "March of the Toys." He not only sneaks in a good exercising march but has lopped off fifteen minutes from the usual dressing time and is sprucer than ever before. Also less grouchy.

Newspapermen, used to watching the divine afflatus as it effects the celebrity, usually point to Kate Smith as a super study in modesty. As her popularity has increased with the years, so has her self-effacement. She is seldom seen in public, although she has lost all sensitiveness about her size. She is devoted to her job and to her charities. There is scarcely a personal appeal to help with this benefit or that that goes unheeded. Employees about radio stations look upon her as the most agreeable of the stars. She has a cheery word for all—and when needed is always on the spot.

Miss Smith's triumph has always been an interesting study in overcoming what many might regard as a severe handicap. I saw her opening night in her first Broadway stage appearance. In size she was something of a monstrosity—indeed almost a circus freak—and was the target for much clowning on the part of her fellow players. If she was to be anything, it seemed, it was a horseplay comedienne. A sort of female Frank McIntyre or Willie Gerdes. Yet, singing that night, she stopped the show cold. Gradually the clowning was abandoned and she went to the Palace in a song act and remained for the longest run—14 weeks as I recall—ever recorded at that hallowed variety stamping ground. Then came her tryout on the radio, a natural for her talent. I am told that, despite her generous impulses, she is among the richest of our women entertainers. She has salted her earnings in carefully selected annuities and can retire in luxury any time. Her escort is always her manager, Ted Collins.

Bagatelles: Jim Braddock likes to visit the astrologers . . . Philip Guedalla, the author, has written his best prose when frightfully hungry . . . There are 250,000 Poles living in New York city . . . Cobina Wright, socialite cafe hostess, enjoys a full-sized cigar after dinner . . . Jacob Rupert has 20 different safety razors on a shelf in his bath . . . Ziegfeld, musical revue expert, could not hum a tune.

There is a comic goofiness about sudden embarrassment. Last evening, along the street, I met a man from whom in early days in New York I borrowed a sum that was not repaid as promptly as promised. And for some reason, in greeting him I tipped my hat.

HEARTBURN

MANY OF my readers seem to misunderstand what is meant by "heartburn." Some of them have thought it is unimportant and are alarmed at the mere suggestion it may be a symptom of something serious. The popular belief that it is always a trivial complaint is unfortunate because it leads to neglect.

Heartburn is produced by excessive gas formation in the stomach.

This produces distension of the stomach, with pressure against the heart. There is an annoying and uncomfortable sensation of burning, with gulping up of food and gas.

Persons who are careless in their eating habits are the ones who suffer most from digestive disturbances, including heartburn. But sometimes this complaint is due to some organic disorder.

For example, it may be a symptom of some intestinal disturbance, gall bladder disease, or even an inflammation of the pancreas or other vital organ of the body. Occasionally, it is a symptom of ulcer of the stomach, chronic gastritis and even chronic appendicitis.

Avoid Hasty Eating

Because something important may be the cause, it will be seen that self-medication is unwise. The victim of obstinate heartburn is wise indeed if he consults with a doctor. If it is the result of a simple digestive disturbance, a slight correction of the diet will usually bring relief.

Avoiding hasty eating and irregular hours of eating, and obtaining an adequate number of hours of rest and relaxation—these two simple rules will solve the problem in the majority of instances. If the complaint persists despite these precautions, undoubtedly it is due to some disturbance of consequence.

At times heartburn is confused with some real heart disorder. But pain around the heart, while it may be the result of some dietary indiscretion, may really be a demand for study. It is always wise to make sure there is no organic change in the heart. Neglect of this condition, if it exists, is a serious matter.

We are rather glad to hear that heartburn is nothing more than a sign of indigestion. "Indigestion" as a matter of fact, is a term which covers a multitude of sins. It should be regarded as a warning to encourage the local doctor to look for the real disturbance.

Dr. Copeland is glad to answer inquiries from readers who send an addressed, stamped envelope with their questions. Address letters to Dr. Copeland, New York City.

Treasury Is Ready For New Borrowing

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The treasury launched a new borrowing operation today, opening bids on $50,000,000 of discount bills issued in anticipation of third-quarter income tax receipts in mid-September.

Secretary Morgenthau said he expected to borrow $50,000,000 weekly for an indefinite period to maintain the treasury's cash working balance.

The new borrowing aroused speculation by federal financial authorities as to whether further bond issues would be necessary in June. Discount bills aggregating $300,000,000 come due then, coincident with

June 15 tax receipts.

An answer to this question may be contained in the President's message to congress this week revising budget estimates for the 1937 and 1938 fiscal years.

Trolley Workers Seek CIO Charter

AKRON, April 19.—After voting to surrender its American Federation of Labor charter and seek affiliation with the John L. Lewis Committee for Industrial Organization, Akron's striking bus and street car operators' union declared today "no jitneys will run in this town."

Leaders of the strike, which started unexpectedly last Friday, claimed approximately 300 drivers voted unanimously yesterday to turn in the charter of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees of America, local No. 1,000.

"We have elected temporary officers and will try to get a CIO charter," said A. L. Calhoun, named temporary president of the group.

Meanwhile negotiations between the United Rubber Workers of America and officials of the Firestone Tire & Rubber company in the CIO union's strike, now in the seventh week, were broken off, said L. S. Buckmaster, president of the Firestone local.

Photoelectric Eye Is Interesting Feature Of E. L. Grate Co. "Safety Lane"

CHECKS WORTH OF HEADLIGHTS

Ten-Day Free Inspection Period Gets Under Way Today

Scores of highly interested motorists yesterday visited "Safety Lane" at the E. L. Grate Motor Co., garage, S. Ellsworth ave., for a preliminary inspection.

The garage has practically been transformed into a safety display, with the installation of multifarious equipment and devices that will instantly and accurately tell the motorist just how many "bugs," if any, there are in the vehicle to which he entrusts his life and the lives of his family and friends.

Drivers may have their cars inspected free of charge for a 10-day period, beginning today.

No. 1—Motorists receive test card in duplicate; No. 2—Parking test and duplicate examination; No. 3—Headlights tested for focus and aim; No. 4—Horn, windshield wiper and rear view mirror inspected; No. 5—Alignment of front and rear wheels tested; No. 6—Brakes tested; No. 7—An O. K. certificate will be pasted on the windshield if the car has passed all tests.

Among the interesting devices used in the testing lane is the "magic eye," which sees your headlights as they really are.

With this Weaver electric eye headlight tester, it is possible to see just how your headlights are aimed, and measure how bright they are. A photo-electric cell measures intensity of your headlight beams, and records their road illumination in candlepower.

When you drive at night, you need the best possible light on the road, without glare to oncoming cars.

By passing this, and the other "safety lane" tests, you can prove your interest in the safety of your fellow citizens.

"Safety Lane's" Electric Eye In Use

Above is seen the photoelectric eye as it is used in the "Safety Lane" tests at the E. L. Grate Motor Co., garage to test automobile headlight effectiveness. Garage Integral Part of House

For many, a house without a garage is not a complete home. Here it forms an integral part of the architecture and is extraordinarily convenient. The large living room can also be used as a dining room and at night as an extra bed chamber by providing a disappearing bed which can be stored in the closet.

The bath is convenient to the bedroom and linen closet. The kitchen is adequately equipped.

The People's Lumber Co., which will be glad to show the prospective home builder this or numerous other home designs, points out that the Burnett, pictured here, can be constructed on an exceptionally small lot. The building, over all, is 28 by 32 feet.

This home can be constructed for $31.50 per month, which includes all charges, such as interest, taxes, fire insurance, etc.

PROPER SEATING IS CAR FEATURE

Nine Different Positions Possible For Packard Front Seat

Women are believed to be more concerned over proper adjustment of the front seat of an automobile, while driving, than men. Good drivers, whether women or men, however, are most comfortable and can cover greater distances in cross country touring when the seat adjustment and the seat itself permit them to relax completely.

Adjustable front seats have been provided for automobiles for several years. Until the present, however, possible adjustment only of moving the seat forward or back to three or four different positions. Usually each change made a considerable difference in the angle of the seat back.

For the new Packard Six and other Packards or 1937 a completely new seat adjustment was evolved. It maintains an orthopedically correct angle of the back of the seat at all positions. As the seat is moved forward it raises at the same time and the top of the back cushion is moved forward to preserve the right angle. There are nine different adjustments. Each can be made while the driver is at the wheel and practically without effort.

The Quaker Motor Sales, E. Pershing st., Packard agency here will be glad to demonstrate this and many other features.

Eight In Single Family Are Killed In Home Explosion

MUSKEGO, Wis., April 19.—The death early today of a 17-year-old girl brought to eight the number of persons of one family who were killed when an explosive substance stored in the basement of their farm home, near here, blew up.

Neighbors joined the grief-stricken father in a search of the ruins for the body of another child.

The mother, Mrs. Mary Waszak, 34, and seven children were seated around the family radio last night when the explosion demolished their home.

Louise Waszak succumbed to injuries in a hospital today.

The body of Raymond Waszak, 3, has not been recovered. Deputy sheriffs said they believed it was somewhere in the twisted wreckage.

Coroner Martin Fromm said evidence indicated that 50 pounds of pyroxyol, used for blasting stumps, had caused the explosion.

Physicians said six of the children—John, Jr., 13; Louise, 16; Elmore, 14; Helen, 12; Frank, 8; and Joseph, 5—all died within a few hours from skull fractures. The mother was killed instantly.

John Waszak, the father, told a hysterical story of how the house raised off the ground and "scattered like matchwood" as he stepped out of the barn where he had been "doing the chores."

Two other children were not at home when the explosion occurred. Parts of the 10-room house were strewn over an acre of ground.

Rhubarb Cheese Pastry Tarts Easily Coked On G. E. Range

By Salem Home Equipment, Inc.

In the spring a young man's fancy may turn to thoughts of love, as the poet says, but in this practical age, his "fancy" is more apt to turn to thoughts of the delicious dishes that the season ushers to the table.

As a matter of fact, don't we all look forward to the first strawberry shortcake or the first tender, juicy morsel of spring lamb fragrant with mint sauce?

TAYLOR FAVORS COST REDUCTION
Believes State's Budget Should Be Pared As Much As Possible

in line with that of Lieut. Gov. Paul Yoder's "hatchet men." Taylor pointed out that he is opposed to any new taxes and that if the present appropriation bill is passed, the taxpayers will be called upon for more money.
Since the present bill does not provide any money for poor relief, this would have to come through new taxes, Taylor said.
Enough money can be found to operate the state, including relief, Taylor believes, by changing the method of collecting sales tax, liquidating delinquent taxes and proper budgeting of the liquor department. He explains that by comparing Ohio with other states, it can be seen that at least $10,000,000 more could be received from the sales tax without changing its base. "Chiseling and excessive operating costs are cutting into sales tax receipts now," he declared.
"The consensus among the conservative group," Taylor said, "is that by cutting the appropriation to somewhere around that of the last biennium, changing the sales tax collection system, budgeting the liquor department and liquidating back taxes, it would be possible to meet all governmental expenditures without additional taxes."

"Gov. Martin L. Davey, who pared the last appropriation bill from about $92,000,000 to $82,000,000, is of the opinion that more money is needed to operate the state now because of the higher cost of living," Taylor said. "The governor asks that the $89,000,000 appropriation bill be passed and proposes that new taxes be levied to care for relief."

In a statement last Saturday Gov. Davey said that if the legislature makes no substantial cut in the present appropriation bill, the state should end the two-year period with a surplus of $4,500,000 or $5,000,000, which he hopes to use to improve welfare institutions. "Our budget will be balanced, except for relief," the governor said.

Major League Pilots Lay Claim To First Division Places

Even Grimes And Dressen Carrying Torch For Their Clubs In National League

Plenty of First Division Predictions, But Not Enough Places To Go Around; Yanks, Indians, Tigers, Generally Rated As A. L.'s Best

NEW YORK, April 19.—The first divisions on both sides of the big league fence are going to be awfully crowded when they post the final standings next September, if you take the word of most of the managers directing the show.

Making their pre-battle statements a few hours before the curtain lifted on the 1937 season today in Washington and Boston, the pilots, with a few exceptions, figured their respective clubs couldn't miss one-two-three-four.

Only, there appeared too many first division selections and too few positions to go around.

Even those old feudists, Burleigh Grimes and Chuck Dressen, were carrying the torch in a big way for their Brooklyn and Cincinnati outfits. And Rogers Hornsby, shrugging off the hopeless outlook of the "ex-perts," saw his St. Louis Browns even as high as fourth.

"Cincinnati may surprise and crash through to the top," said Dressen, without so much as a backward glance at the Giants, Cardinals, Pirates or Cubs, who are regarded as pretty good this year. "With the breaks, the Brooklyn may be right up there—and you can tell Dressen I said so," was the last minute "feed-box special" from Grimes.

Generally, however, the Yankees, Indians and Tigers, with either Washington, Boston or Chicago as the fourth outfit, were figured to be the American league share of the series. Next fall, while the quartet of New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh and St. Louis was augmented by Dressen's decisive vote for his Reds in the National league dog-fight.

Bucky Harris, whose Senators tangled with the Athletics in Washington on today's getaway program made no bones about it—From the time President Roosevelt threw out the first ball here, you can look for us to be a real contender," Connie Mack, with a somewhat hapless looking collection of A's, even indicated his youngsters might conceivably pull up out of the cellar.

Up in Boston, both Bill McKechnie of the Bees and Jimmy Wilson of the Phillies, rival managers in the morning and afternoon Patriots' day games, which comprise the curtailed opening National league card, refused to go out on the limb with any predictions. But each was certain his outfit was improved.

From New York, the championship pilots—Yankee Joe McCarthy and Giant Bill Terry, oozed confidence.

"The Yanks won by 19½ games last year—and it's the same club of Yanks," said McCarthy. "I think Cleveland is the most dangerous opposition."

"With our infield, pitching and batting improved," said Terry, "I don't see how we can miss."

Another definitely picking his own outfit was Charley Grimm of the Cubs, all smiles over the deal which brought Rip Collins from the Cardinals to play thirteenth hole at first base. "Barring bad injury breaks, I believe the Cubs are good enough to win," he announced.

Mickey Cochrane saw his Detroit as "the best defensive club in the American league."

Steve O'Neil, burly boss of the Cleveland Indians, offered a prayer only that four newcomers—Lyn Lary, Jule Solters, Earl Whitehill and Ivy Paul Andrews, produce.

"If they do," said he confidently, "this club will be among the pennant contenders." Our attack is the strongest since I took charge."

Frankie Frisch took a look over what is generally regarded as a sub-standard set of St. Louis Cardinals and refused to pick any club. "I look like a five-club dog fight," he said.

The Pirates, stronger than ever if they only make their power count rated with the Giants, Cubs and Cardinals in Pittsburgh Pilot Pie Travnor's book.

Detroit, Boston, New York, Washington, and up to the finish, predicted Jimmy Dykes of Chicago's "dead horse" White Sox. He failed to mention Cleveland.

Joe Cronin, heading Boston's Gold Sox, was happy about several things, but happiest "because the pressure is off us—they aren't picking us for the pennant this year."

HENRICH SELLS SELF TO YANKS FOR BIG PRICE

Young Outfielder Will Probably Stick Until DiMaggio Is Better

NEW YORK, April 19.—Tommy Henrich, the young outfielder who won his freedom from baseball "slavery" and stirred up a lot of fuss in the big leagues while he was doing it, may get a chance to fill in for last year's rookie sensation, Joe DiMaggio, when the season gets under way tomorrow.

The New York Yankees announced yesterday they had signed Henrich, who had offered his services to the highest bidder after Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis had declared him a free agent. While financial and other details were not revealed, observers figured the Yankees will keep Tommy on hand until DiMaggio recovers from the tonsil operation which took him out of the lineup a few days ago. Then, unless Henrich succeeds in making a place for himself, he likely will be farmed out for a season.

Johnny Nee, Yankee scout who outbid seven other major league clubs for Henrich's services, paying about $25,000, it is believed, declared the youngster had advanced so fast "there's no telling how far he will go."

Henrich had protested to Landis that he was being "covered up" by the Cleveland Indians after he had been sold by New Orleans, a Cleveland farm, to Milwaukee for a price considerably below the "market" for a .364 hitter. Landis declared him a free agent after a hearing and declared the deal had been made at the direction of Cleveland officials with the purpose of delaying Henrich's advancement to the big leagues.

Junior Legion Baseball Drive To Get Under Way

Thousands of Ohio Youngsters Ready To Answer Call For Tryouts With Post Teams

COLUMBUS, April 19.—Thousands of Ohio "kids" were ready today to answer calls this week for tryouts with American Legion post junior baseball teams, as the Ohio department launched a drive to enroll hundreds of clubs for the state, district and national competitions.

Heavier interest among youngsters is evident this year, Legion officials said, and two big league rookies are credited with causing it. Bob Feller, Cleveland's sensational schoolboy hurler, and "Mickey" Owen, the scrappy St. Louis Cardinal catcher, are former Legion junior baseballers, and many of the youths aspire to follow in their footsteps.

State Legion headquarters reported today that at least 1,000 teams would take the field in the next two weeks for the warm-up games which lead to the district tournaments early in July, and the state finals at Columbus, July 19 to 22.

Most of the "new blood" will come from the smaller communities which were benefited by a sweeping change in the rules governing "recruiting." In former years the rules stipulated only that one post could not encroach on another post's territory, and as a result teams drew a bulk of their players from a large district.

Under the 1937 rules players may be recruited only from restricted areas. In cities of 10,000 or less, players may come from any part of the county so long as they are not taken from another team or post. In cities between 10,000 and 50,000 players may come from any part of the city, provided all are students in that city's high school. In communities of more than 50,000 the teams may be recruited from but one high school, unless the school's male attendance is less than 300, in which case they may come from not more than two adjacent schools.

To be eligible, boys must not have reached their 17th birthday prior to March 30, 1937. Birth certificates must be filed with state headquarters before teams will be permitted in district tournaments.

The cities represented in the state finals last year, Lima, Warren, Zanesville, Columbus, Middletown, Sandusky, Pemberville, Chillicothe and Springfield, will have teams again this season.

Others expected to have one or more teams in the competition are

President Warms Up For Pitching Duty At Game Today

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Franklin Roosevelt, a big righthander, warmed up today to start the American league on another baseball season.

He was free to put all he had on his first pitch, for he was to make only one. That was from the President's private box to the Washington and Philadelphia players, grouped near home plate.

A sellout two days before the game assured a capacity crowd of 30,000 to see the President in his annual pitching chore. The season starts here a day ahead of the other major league cities.

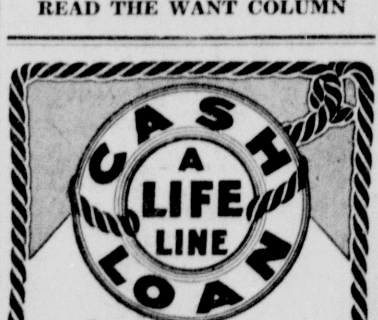

Vice President Garner also had a preliminary duty—hoisting the flag in centerfield.

Once Mr. Roosevelt had thrown the first strike, Joe Cascarella was to take over the pitching for Washington and Harry Kelley for the Athletics.

Cleveland Keglers Star In National Tournament As Name-Bowlers Falter

Flock of More Famous Keglers Fail To Turn In Good Marks; Walter Ward Leads Lake City Performers By Copping First In All-Events

NEW YORK, April 19.—Milwaukee's crack bowlers still hold the center of the American Bowling Congress stage today as they try in the minor events to touch the heights they missed in the major five-man team competition. After they're through the ordinary guys of the sport can take over in tonight's five-man competition with the comforting knowledge that they'll get full credit for any outstanding feats and won't be noticed if they fail.

While a flock of famous keglers failed to disturb the tournament standings, some unheralded Cleveland performers took over the leading roles. The Waldorf Golden Bock team rolled into second place in the team standing late Saturday night with a 3,111 count to top a series of fine performances.

Walter Ward, a 37-year-old accountant who competed with that team, kept right on spilling the pins yesterday to come up with the all-events lead and the second-highest nine-game total in tournament history, totalling 2,039, just 21 pins short of the A. B. C. record.

Just before Ward turned in his brilliant score, Johnny Crimmins of Detroit had marked up 1,982 which put him temporarily at the head of the all-events list.

Completing the Cleveland round-up Fred Root and Jim Milota took fourth in doubles with 1,317.

"Leisure to Repent"

by Ursula Parrott

CHAPTER XXIII
Felicia had no letter, no telephone message, nothing at all from Keith during the weeks of her convalescence. At first that did not trouble her, while she supposed he was convalescing too. But she began to be frantic when less than a week remained before her sailing date.

Two days before she sailed with her parents, she had moved to their house. Eustace had driven her that short distance in silence. She knew, and thought he knew, that there was no chance she would ever return to share any house with him, or anything at all any more. But they did not mention that. Only at the door of her father's house she said: "You're coming in of course?"

Her husband said: "I think not." Townes was taking her hand luggage out of the roadster. Her trunks had been sent over earlier. While Townes moved about, she fumbled for something to say.

On a June day something like this one, they'd left her father's house, in a shower of rice and felicitations, for their honeymoon four years ago. She hadn't loved him even then, but she had liked him. This was a dismal end to that gay beginning. But she could not say that.

Eustace got out of the roadster, opened the door beside her, and helped her out into the sunny quiet street. His face was more expressionless than that accident had made hers. He would not thank her for saying anything that might break him!

He said: "I shan't go to the boat, Felicia. There'll be reporters—and too many people generally."

"As you wish, Eustace."

"Have a nice summer, and give my best to Denise and Gilbert." "A house on the Sussex downs sounds dull as possible, but I'll get a good rest and feel more like myself."

"That's the idea."

"Eustace—I'm—I'm sorry." He ignored that as if she had not said it. "If you want me, Felicia, send for me. I can still manage passage money." His tone was one of mentioning the weather.

"Yes, Eustace."

"Good-by, then."

He got into his roadster, which was just beginning to get shabby; and when he'd have money for another, or how long he would have money for gasoline, he wondered! As she wondered, he put the car in to gear and moved down the street. She thought that when he turned at the corner, he turned his head and waved to her. But he passed so quickly out of sight that she was not sure.

And next morning there was a letter from Keith, sent by messenger to her father's house. Fortunately, both her father and mother were out when it came. She looked herself into her bedroom to read it.

Felicia: The long delay in writing you has been, as I suppose you guessed if you happened to see the newspapers, that my right arm was broken and I couldn't use the hand. What I have to say to you was not the sort of thing that could be dictated. I should have telephoned, but thought it would embarrass you, Eustace and whoever else happened to be present.

Father has had me surrounded with nurses, masseurs and so on constantly. I hear that you are fairly completely recovered. (Persuaded Father to find out) That's good, darling. Myself, shall limp, they say, but only slightly.

Do write me now, and tell me what you want me to do. Be assured that whatever you want, will make me happy. I can't of course estimate the situation at your end. It may be that you've changed your mind about me. I hope not! Forgive the total inadequacy of this. It takes me so long to manage a few lines because of the stiffness in my hand, which will improve daily, they tell me, from now on.

Do write quickly as you can. As ever,— But there seemed to be more than difficulty in managing a pen in the unaccountable coolness of that letter.

Her pride dictated her answer. Her brief answer to the effect that she was sailing as her parents wished, and if he wanted to join her, she would be glad to see him. His response arrived on the morning of her sailing:

Felicia: Don't write as if you thought I did not care what became of you. You know I do. But it hasn't seemed to me that I could telephone you at your father's house, or at your husband's in decency. I haven't been able to get out—though I shall next week.

Please don't go to England. It must be as obvious to you as to me that I can't visit you at Denise's house, either. If you will marry me, why not go straight to Reno? And (as I can't help knowing, because Eustace's people have gone on so, if you're hard up, let me pay the expenses.

Like the darling you are, only not your letters, come to see me! I have a great deal more to tell you than I can write.

Only, she thought, not that he loved her much, else he would not have written that. She said to herself furiously: "So he's willing to make an honest woman of me. Well, he needs it. And in that brief answer, she said:

But the anger did not endure past New York harbor. She began to make excuses for those two letters.

She sent him a wireless: "PLEASE KEITH SAIL AS SOON AS YOU ARE ABLE TO JOIN ME STOP I HAD TO SAIL STOP WILL EXPLAIN WHEN I SEE YOU LOVE FELICIA."

He had to join her, to make her feel important and wanted, and that her looks were all right, really, that she just imagined they weren't. She was glad she had instructed the wireless operator to give her any message she might receive privately.

Keith's answer was comforting: "GET DENISE TO INVITE ME AND THEN THERE IS NO REASON NOT STOP WILL BE ABLE TO TRAVEL IN MONTH STOP WHAT A WIFUL WOMAN YOU ARE STOP WHERE SHALL I ADDRESS LETTERS LOVE KEITH."

Well, she could get Denise to invite him, she supposed. She had usually been able to persuade Denise to do what she wanted. But on her arrival in England she was startled by her sister's attitude to her, having believed—because she wanted to—that Denise would long since have recovered from any resentment of the situation as it involved Keith. Still, Felicia was determined to have him join her. They would face the family, all at once, get it over with, and sail home.

Felicia was patient with difficulty through the days before Gilbert's departure. Better not try with Denise, while he was in her presence. Denise would ask his advice, and he would certainly refuse to have Keith as a guest.

Denise might not tell him, of course. There was clearly something strained in her relationship with him. But, it couldn't be changed that Denise should tell. Warily the possibilities went round and round in Felicia's head.

She could meet Keith in London, even if she failed with Denise. But,

CAPE TOWN—When a war census now being made in South Africa is completed the government will know what can be manufactured within the Union in time of war, how great an army it can mobilize without paralyzing the civilian population, and whether it can produce all its own ammunition.

Mischa Auer, Sally Eilers and James Dunn in a scene from "We Have Our Moments", number one feature at the Grand tonight and Tuesday.

Sally Eilers and James Dunn, in "We Have Our Moments," share a double bill at the Grand tonight and Tuesday with Dick Purcell and June Travis in "Men in Exile."

Mischa Auer, gorilla impersonator of "My Man Godfrey" and outstanding in subsequent hits, plays the role of a Monaco chief of police. Auer, two gangs of crooks, a detective and several government agents are searching for a large sum of hot money.

Goes to Europe

Miss Eilers, an American school teacher who is to be married shortly, cherishes an ambition to go to Europe. When her fiancé refuses to take her there on their honeymoon, she realizes it's then or never, so she draws her money out of the bank and sets sail.

On the boat she meets James Dunn, a detective posing as a school teacher; Thurston Hall and Marjorie Gateson, supposedly cultured, wealthy Americans who are really crooks enroute to Europe with their aid, Warren Hymer, to get rid of bank robbery money; David Niven, English crook, who offers Hall and Miss Gateson English money for their "hot" American.

Miss Eilers inadvertently gets mixed up with the crooks when they hide their money in her trunk to get it through the customs.

The second half of the bill, "Men in Exile," starring June Travis and Dick Purcell, is an exciting adventure tale of a former New York gangster who flees from an unjust murder charge to an island in the Caribbean, from which he can't be extradited, to start life again.

Purcell, as the gangster, meets an old confederate who is promoting a revolution in the little Latin country. The revolution organizer is played by Alan Baxter. Others in the cast are Margaret Irving, Victor Varconi, Olin Howland and Veda Ann Borg.

"Personal Property" with Jean Harlow and Robert Taylor in the top billing, shows at the State tonight and tomorrow.

De-glamorizing a screen hero is always dangerous for the star's popularity but Taylor survives the process in "Personal Property," in which he plays a comedy role, coming straight from his Armand in "Camille."

Miss Harlow, a lovely American widow, up to her neck in bills, is engaged to marry Reginald Owen, impecunious Englishman who believes her wealthy. She meets his brother, Taylor, and engages him as her butler, although he is, at the time, just out of prison and on a job as sheriff hired to keep her from making off in the night with her possessions.
